CHARGE MOB IN BANK RUN

Anxious Depositors of Pittsburg Savings Bank Storm Doors at Opening.

$5,000,000 ON COUNTERS

PITTSBURGH, July 8.—Mounted policemen drove their horses onto the sidewalk to force an opening among depositors about the Pittsburgh Bank for Savings and as soon as the doors opened a run on the bank began.

This is the fourth bank affected by the sudden closing yesterday of the First-Second National Bank of Pittsburgh by order of the comptroller of the currency followed by the closing of the First National Bank of McKeesport, Pa., and Aubrey, O., National. In all four banks, J. S. and W. S. Kuhn, the financiers, whose private interests have been thrown into receiverships, are heavily interested. At the Pittsburgh Bank for Savings $5,000,000 in cash was stacked on the counters before the hour for opening the morning.

Other Banks Ready to Lead Aid.

Bankers declare that the run on the Bank for Savings was to be expected. No formal meeting of the Pittsburg Clearing House Association was held today, but it was announced the bankers are ready to get together at 8 moment's notice. Today all offered help to the distressed institution for savings.

Around the twenty-four-story skyscraper housing the failed First-Second National Bank today swarmed a great crowd, the majority of them foreigners, with their life savings in the bank's foreign department. Police kept the crowd orderly.

The spectre of criminal prosecution entered Pittsburgh's tense financial situation.

False Statements Charged.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo issued orders from Washington last night on which acting comptroller T. P. Kane is working today. A false statement of the condition of the First-Second National Bank may be the basis of an action against W. S. Kuhn, its president. James S. Kuhn today resigned as president of the Bank for Savings, and W. J. Jones, formerly secretary and treasurer of the institution, was chosen to succeed Kuhn.

W. S. Kuhn, vice-president of the Pittsburgh Bank for Savings, also resigned. T. M. Unger was elected vice-president and A. S. Rockerly secretary-treasurer.

Federal Judge Orr today appointed Frelt G. Kay as the fourth receiver of the American Water Works and Guarantee Company to take the place of Samuel Bailey, Jr., who refused to serve yesterday.

The First National Bank of McKeesport, which was suspended by officials of that institution yesterday, was closed this morning by order of the comptroller of the currency.

When the Bank for Savings opened its doors today a crowd of 500 people, mostly women, were waiting to get in. In less than a minute the big banking room was filled and the iron railings had to be closed so that those inside could be accommodated before allowing others to enter.

Small Demands Paid at Once.

All demands up to $50 were paid promptly, but notices for larger amounts were requested, giving thirty to ninety days, according to the amount asked for by the depositor.

The city, notorious for its bank wrecks, was shocked out of its wits by the failure of the First-Second National Bank—the greatest bank merger in the city's history.

As usual, dollar for dollar is being paid the distressed depositors, but [illegible] Washington say the De[illegible]

"I AM THE ONE BAD WALL STREET MAN," EXCLAIMS LAMAR

WASHINGTON, July 8.—David Lamar, arrangement," designed to head off the the Wall Street adventurer, took the stand again today before the Senate Lobby Investigation Committee, and in a demonstration of mental gymnastics attempted to show that his friend, Edward Lauterbach, was really the victim of a conspiracy on Lamar's part to bring Theodore Ledyard and his friends into the open.

Lamar surprised the committee with some of his bold statements.

"I am the one villain in Wall Street. I am the one bad man there and all the rest of them are good and innocent," he said, explaining why he had impersonated Palmer and Riordan and why he had sent Lauterbach to Ledyard with a "political

To Expose Conspiracy.

"You can't get gold out of brass," he said, explaining further his philosophy of life and explaining that he was "brass."

"I realize that my life and character are at stake here," said Lamar. "I know that my motives in this case, however, will be properly construed."

Lamar then told Chairman Overman and other members of the committee that he had perfect confidence in them and said his purpose in calling attention to an alleged forgery of $82,000,000 in the books of the Union Pacific and his exposition of the situation existing between the financial interests and himself and Lauterbach was to compel those men to recognize the folly of their course against Lauterbach. If they did not do so, he hoped to compel them to come out in the open and display the conspiracy and the surreptitious statements they had circulated against us in New York for years."

"Part of this has been accomplished," he concluded.

Referring to the impersonation of Representative D. J. Riordan two years ago, Lamar swore that he told Charles Steele, of J. P. Morgan & Co., two days after the conversation, that he had impersonated Riordan.

"There could have been no deception after that," said Lamar.

Lamar insisted on putting his statement to the committee in argumentative form and he was frequently interrupted by Senator Reed.

Protest by Reed.

"Mr. Chairman, I protest that this is not testimony," declared Reed. Continuing his statement Lamar said: "Two years ago Steele knew that it was not Riordan that he was talking to but he knew that it was me. I was always of the opinion that Ledyard knew that he was not talking with Palmer."

Lamar said he went to take Ledyard and his associates out into the open. "I knew Ledyard and his friends," said Lamar, "had been using many underhand methods of duplicity. I deliberately and intentionally employed this thing so that they would have a case against Lauterbach and would come out into the open. That is the purpose of the Wall Street proceeding on parallel lines."

Lamar became somewhat hysterical. "Mr. Chairman," he said, "don't you see what a physical strain I am laboring under? I hope you will excuse my excitement."

Lamar declared that when he impersonated Congressman Palmer the second time, his ear was so attuned to the phone conversation that he knew when Ledyard cut in with his private telephone line.

Lamar frequently apologized to members of the committee for statements reflecting on Ledyard and for expressing his own opinions. Senator Reed demanded that the witness give facts, and Chairman Overman threatened to compel Lamar to leave the stand if he did not confine himself to facts. "I think I had better stop," said Lamar.

Lamar is Sarcastic.

Senator Walsh then insisted that Lamar be allowed to answer questions, instead of going ahead with narrative, and proceeded to question him. Lamar said he was responsible for the "political program," which Lauterbach carried to Ledyard, and that he was responsible for Lauterbach's belief that Speaker Clark and Senator Stone were authorities for the representations which he made to Ledyard. Lamar referred sarcastically to Ledyard saying that in a game of duplicity such as the one in which he participated, "Ledyard had to begin where I finished, if he was to catch up." He also referred to Ledyard's efforts to defeat Lamar as "Elephantine." He wished to force Ledyard and his associates, "who have ruined many men," to come into the open and publicly show themselves against men whom they oppose.

Lamar submitted to the lobby investigating committee of Senate today a statement which he claims proves that there had been a wholesale forgery on the books of the Union Pacific Railroad.

David Lamar expects to begin suit against J. P. Morgan for libel, according to the intimation of Lauterbach while to the witness stand. Mr. Morgan's reference to Lamar as "vermin" in a recent interview has aroused the hot resentment of the daring operator. The statement of the financier that an effort to stop the steel investigation was made at a figure "too ridiculously low to mention," has similarly stung Lauterbach, and he will appear as witness for Lamar when the latter brings suit against Morgan. Lamar refuses to divulge further details of the proposed suit.

House Ready to Act.

The House is expected to take final action tomorrow on the resolution reported from the Rules Committee authorizing an investigation of the Mulhall charges. It is apparent that the House investigation is to be drastic and the House lobby committee will be at work within a week.

Not only will the committee probe the Mulhall charges, but it is authorized to investigate all lobbies past and present, which have sought to influence legislation. The activities of labor and anti-labor organizations, the old and present organizations, associations interested in the tariff, currency, railroads and other issues will be subjected to the House inquisition.

Representative Garrett of Tennessee may be appointed chairman of the House lobby committee, according to reports about the Capitol today. The Speaker is to name a committee of seven when the resolution ordering the probe passes the House.

RENEW EFFORTS TO AVERT "L" STRIKE BY MEN

The Elevated considered the names over night and announced today that they would accept none one of the four.

The arbitral board will consist of Attorneys Richards and Vahey, representing the two sides, and the third man—to be chosen today.

This board will take up the work of adjusting a new wage schedule for all employes of the Elevated.

The position of arbitrator, on which the fight has hinged, is of vital importance. He must decide all disputed points. The representative of the men will ask for instance, for a twenty per cent increase on some classes of work. The road will contend this is too great an increase. The arbitrator must decide what is fair.

The dispute which threatened to end in a strike was precipitated when the Elevated announced they would not allow the arbitrator to be chosen by the Mayor —as provided in the agreement between the union and the road last year.

Conference with State Board.

At 10:30 representatives of both employes and company met the State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation for a conference. Fred Fay, national organizer of the union; James H. Vahey, its attorney; Matthew Higgins, the president, and M. J. Nesdale, business manager, represented the men. James L. Richards and Frederick Snow represented the company.

The Elevated road today issued a statement explaining the discharge of a number of employes of the track department. The statement says that these men were laid off in the regular course of work, and that others were hired for the shop force at the same time. The company specifically denied that these discharges had the remotest connection with the present controversy.

The Elevated's statement, coming direct from General Bancroft, reads thus:

Men have been laid off in the usual course of business in the road department, just as more men have been employed in the shops.

In the case of the track laborers, some temporary men have been laid off, and this is frequently done in the Summer season, when the work fluctuates.

It never occurred to anyone here that the reason for doing this would be misunderstood.

No authority has been given to lay off permanent men, and it was not intended to lay off any such.

The union men today declared the Elevated showed no sign of preparation for a strike—that there were no strike-breakers at the car barns, and no signs of arrangements for running the cars should the men go out.

FIVE MILLIONS CASH TO MEET RUN ON BANK

partment of Justice probably will be invoked to straighten out the affairs of the failed bank and its allied interests. This means criminal prosecutions.

The First-Second's liabilities are close to $40,000,000. At least one-third of its $3,000,000 capital is reported impaired, and it is estimated that depositors' losses will amount to $30,000,000.

CRASH PRECIPITATED WHEN ASSETS WERE QUESTIONED, SAYS KUHN

Difference between the Comptroller of Currency and the officials of the First-Second National Bank of Pittsburgh as to the value of assets is the reason why the First-Second National Bank was forced to close its doors, according to a statement made today by W. S. Kuhn, president of the bank.

The so-called discrepancy between the bank's statement to the examiner and that published yesterday, he says, was caused by the method of figuring the reserve.

The First National Bank of McKeesport was closed to prevent a run on the bank and to protect all depositors.

Mr. Kuhn was seen today by an AMERICAN reporter at the Sargent estate, Pride's Crossing, where he has been visiting his wife, who has just given birth to a baby boy. He says he will return to Pittsburgh as soon as the health of his wife will permit.

Here is his statement:

Anxious to Protect Depositors.

"I do not choose to discuss the situation except to correct one or two errors in the New York papers. All I know is what I have heard over the telephone. I really can't say anything authoritative with reference to the closing of the Pittsburgh and McKeesport banks because I have been away for two weeks and am not in close touch with the real situation in Pittsburgh.

"I want it understood, however, that I am anxious to do everything to protect the interests of our depositors, and the directors will gladly co-operate with the bank commissioner in the endeavor to realize the most from our securities.

"On my return to Pittsburgh I shall go immediately into the affairs of both banks with the board of directors and we expect our depositors will receive all that is due them, to the very last penny.

"The reason for the Comptroller closing the bank in Pittsburgh was simply because of the government having a different valuation for our securities—assets and reserves—from our own estimate as to their value.

"The bank statement referred to in the Pittsburgh papers was not a sworn statement, but came from the general bookkeeper without the approval of the two vice presidents who were then in charge of the affairs of the bank.

Question of Value of Assets.

"The only question involved, with reference to the alleged discrepancy between the bank's statement to the examiner and that which appeared in the Pittsburgh papers, was the question of the method of figuring the reserve.

"Following the action of the bank examiner in closing the First-Second National Bank of Pittsburgh, the directors deemed it best to close the First National Bank of McKeesport before a run had commenced and in order to safeguard all the depositors of that bank.

"I know nothing whatever about the closing of the bank in Amherst, Ohio, following the Pittsburgh crash. The Kuhn interests had nothing whatever to do with the suspension of the bank at Amherst."

In response to the question: "Do you think that the condition of the banks was effected by the Democratic currency reform and tariff legislation now in vogue?" Mr. Kuhn laughingly replied: "I couldn't answer. It would be foolish for me to make any such statement at this juncture."

Police Save Score in Back Bay Fire

More than a score of persons were rescued by Patrolmen Maity, McGowan and Day or fled to the street in their night clothes, early today, in a fire which caused a damage of $2,500 and burned from basement to roof in the four-story brick apartment and lodging house at No. 372 Massachusetts avenue, Back Bay. Mrs. Addie Dolan, Mrs. Anne C. Janson, Mrs. Agnes Graham and her five-year-old daughter Margaret, Mrs. Arthur Brown, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Gullen and Mr. and Mrs. George F. Green were among those saved.

DEFENDS GIRL WHO SHOT HIM

WORCESTER, July 8.—Forced to testify against his sweetheart, Miss Rose McGurl, who tried to kill him with a revolver on June 22, Patrolman Albert R. Murphy told the story of the shooting to Judge Utley in the Worcester Police Court today. He wept as he testified, and begged the court to excuse him from giving further details, but Judge Utley ordered him to proceed. As a result of his testimony, Miss McGurl was sentenced to the Women's Reformatory Prison at Sherborn.

"We were engaged to be married," said the patrolman. "With the exception of several love-spats we have never had any trouble to mar our happiness until this accident. It has broken my heart. On the night of the accident Rose and I were together at her home. We had spent the afternoon together at the circus. Your honor, I cannot continue. I love Rose better than my life, and I do not wish to say anything more."

"Proceed with your testimony," ordered Judge Utley.

With much difficulty he continued:

"I am sure that the shooting was accidental. While we were there in the house no unkind words had been said by either of us. Just before I was wounded Rose left the room for a short while and when she returned I did not notice what she carried in her hand. She sat down beside me, on my right side. I next heard a muffled report and felt a sharp pain in my side. I exclaimed, 'My God, Rose, I'm shot.'

"I know she didn't mean it. I know she didn't mean it," sobbed the officer. "We love each other too well for one to attempt to kill the other."

MONTENEGRO AND BULGARS IN WAR STATE

LONDON, July 8.—Messages from Cettinje, Montenegro, report that M. Koulouchef, Bulgarian minister to Montenegro, left today. This reduces Montenegro and Bulgaria to a state of war.

Dispatches from Belgrade say that official announcement was made there today that fighting between Servians and Bulgarians near Uskub, Veles and Ketchana has ceased. General Kitinchieff, with a Bulgarian army which is operating in Eastern Servia, between the Orient railway and Timok river, has surrounded Pirot, ten miles from the Bulgarian frontier, and its capture is imminent.

King Constantine, who is in the field in Southern Macedonia at the head of the Greek armies, reported from Salonika today that the Bulgarians are in retreat.

The Greek plan of campaign now is to try to annihilate the Bulgarians, who are operating northeastward of Salonika before reinforcements can be sent from the north.

The Bulgarian troops, after repulsing several small Servian forces, have succeeded in penetrating to Vranya, the war commissariat station of the Servian Army, according to a dispatch from Sofia.

Today's Beauty Recipes

By Mme. D'Mille.

"Weather marred skins can be made clear, soft and beautiful if powder and many creams are discarded for a maxatone lotion. This lotion applied in the morning lasts throughout the day and blends so nicely with the skin that it cannot be detected. To prepare, dissolve an original package maxatone in one-half pint witch hazel. The regular use of this skin lotion corrects many complexion upsets and is especially effective when used for tan, freckles or that 'greasy,' 'shaky' condition following the continued use of powder. To the disinfect complexion the maxatone lotion will lend an indefinable charm and elegance.

"No woman is justified in employing the painful and expensive electric needle to rid the skin of objectionable growths of hair, because with delatone the skin can be made clear and hairless. A paste is made with some powdered delatone and water and applied to the hairy surface for two minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. This removes every trace of hair without mar or blemish to the skin."—Adv.

SYLVIA, SENT TO PRISON, MAKES SUICIDE THREAT

LONDON, July 8.—Priceless works of art were destroyed today when militants burned the unoccupied mansion owned by Sir W. H. Lever at Norwich. The house stood on the Irvington Hill and was entirely destroyed.

The loss is hard to estimate correctly because of the difficulty in setting a price upon the paintings and bric-a-brac which were destroyed, but it is estimated at $100,000 in round figures.

A message was found in the ruins addressed to King George. It said:

Wake up! The government gives no reason to be loyal. Then try us!

Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, daughter of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, has been arrested for leading a mob into Downing street to seize Premier Asquith and Chancellor Lloyd-George.

She was speaking at a meeting in the East End of London. When the police appeared to execute the warrant for her arrest, which was issued after her failure to turn up at Bow Street on Saturday, she nearly succeeded in escaping her pursuers.

Her chauffeur hurriedly wrapped her in his great coat and amid great excitement she got out of the hall and escaped on foot. The officers, however, proved too swift for Sylvia, and captured her. She struggled violently and a big crowd gathered, the greatest excitment prevailing. Eventually the police had to carry her to a taxicab, in which she was driven to Bow Street.

Miss Pankhurst Defiant.

Miss Pankhurst was arraigned in Bow Street Police Court at noon and put under $12,000 bond to keep the peace for a year. An alternative of three months' imprisonment was given. She accepted imprisonment.

Mrs. Flora Drummond, another militant, who could not be tried when her case was called in court because of illness brought on by hunger strike, was arraigned with Miss Pankhurst on the charge of malicious destruction of property. Her case was put over until October 6 and she was remanded.

It developed that the suffragettes burned the Lever mansion because King George recently accepted an invitation to visit it and view the Lever art collection.

When the magistrate announced his decision Miss Pankhurst harangued the court and declared that she would not only go on a hunger strike if sent to jail, but would abstain from water also. She swore she would kill herself before she would submit to any male judge's ruling. She was taken to prison.

After Miss Pankhurst was sentenced Miss Zelia Emerson, the Jackson, Mich., suffragette, who was arrested on the charge of obstructing the arrest of Miss Pankhurst, was arraigned and fined $10. She refused to pay and was sentenced to a month at hard labor.

SYLVIA PANKHURST, who declared in court she would kill herself rather than accept the judgment of a male judge.

Wild Chase After Woman.

She had made a dramatic appearance at the meeting. Several speakers had announced that she was coming, and had made veiled hints that it might be necessary for the audience to protect her till she could complete her speech. Miss Pankhurst came suddenly to the platform.

She began to speak at once, talking very fast. She said: "We mean to have a revolt. I and my friends are out to have a few riots. We are not excusing ourselves because we have not had a real riot yet, for we mean to have it. I wish we had had a real riot on Sunday. Look out for your opportunities and see that you take them even if I am in jail."

SECOND BOY TO DIE FOR LOVE OF SAME GIRL

NORTH ADAMS, July 8.—While arrangements were being made today for the funeral of James Roy Curley, the Drury High School athlete who shot himself through the temple yesterday, all northern Berkshire discussed the striking similarity between the case of the schoolboy athlete and that of Edward Lunt, his chum and classmate.

Lunt committed suicide one year ago last month.

The chums were infatuated with one of the prettiest girls of North Adams, the daughter of one of the city's best families. All through their schooldays she had been one of Roy Curley's best friends, but Ned Lunt's sweetheart.

After Lunt's suicide, the girl was seen more and more in the company of Roy Curley. While Lunt was alive, young Curley and the girl were as favorite brother to favorite sister. Now, apparently, they were all of this and more. It was common talk among the young friends of both that "Ned" Lunt had "left his girl to his chum."

Now the young woman—she is still a schoolgirl—is twice bereaved in a manner so tragic that the shock might well prove too much for a full-grown woman. She is today completely secluded at her home. North Adams mentions her name, if it all, in respectful whispers.

Friends of James Roy Curley can imagine no reason, they say, for his self-destruction. Next year he would have graduated from Drury High. He had been president of the junior class and would likely have been similarly distinguished by the seniors. He had been captain of football and baseball clubs, one of them the champion aggregation of Berkshire County.

Blame Engineer for Funeral Train Wreck

New Haven Road Man Found Guilty "of Criminal Act."

WINSTED, Ct., July 8.—William Rigby, a New Haven road engineer residing at Harrison, N. Y., was today found to be guilty of carelessness and gross negligence by Coroner S. A. Herman in causing the death "by his criminal act" of Thomas J. Weldon of Stamford, his fireman, who was killed in a wreck of a south-bound funeral train and a north-bound freight at North Kent, Ct., June 2.

The funeral train, which had been chartered by Dr. McBurney of New York, had carried a party to Pittsfield and was returning without passengers when it ran into a freight train which was waiting on the main track expecting the extra to take the siding. The coroner gives as his reasons for finding Rigby responsible for the fatality that he did not stop his train for the purpose of throwing the switch to take the siding.

Jail His Address.

Lawrence E. King was sentenced to the House of Correction today by Judge Ely for six months for stealing a violin and rifle from some person unknown. Then arrested he gave his address as No. 40 Thorndike street, Cambridge. The police found the address given was the East Cambridge jail. Sheriff Fairbairn said that King had been released from there a few weeks ago.

WILSON PLAYS GOLF ON LINKS AT DARTMOUTH

HANOVER, N. H., July 8.—Desiring to mix a little collegiate atmosphere with his golf, President Wilson motored forty miles to play on the Dartmouth links today. The President covered the course in good shape, easily outplaying his opponent, Dr. Grayson, U. S. N.

Because of the lack of caddies, the President's chauffeur carried Dr. Grayson's clubs, while Secret Service Operative Murphy caddied for the Chief Executive.

The President lunched at the Hanover Inn and motored back to Cornish shortly after noon. He appeared to be in fine form and said the mountain air of New Hampshire is doing him a lot of good. His return to Washington is still indefinite.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., July 8.—Brazilian naval officers assisted Ambassador De Jama in honoring the memory of John Paul Jones today, when, in behalf of the southern republic, a wreath was placed on the naval hero's tomb.

OFFICIALS AT ODDS AFTER RAID IN PROVIDENCE

PROVIDENCE, July 7.—The North Providence police and Attorney-General Herbert A. Rice are at odds—all because the Attorney-General engineered a gambling raid in the police district without notifying the chief. So Chief Willis arrested one of the Attorney-General's investigators and charged him with rioting.

The case was today continued until July 17.

The story begins five weeks ago. Frank Williamson secured evidence as a result of which secret indictments were returned against Oscar Petchske of the Geneva Hotel in North Providence. Then last week the hotel was raided under the direction of Attorney-General Parker and High Sheriff Andrew J. Wilcox—and Chief of Police George P. Willis of North Providence wasn't notified.

Last Sunday, Willis saw Williamson attempting to gain admittance to the hotel—and he had Officer Frank Walker arrest the Attorney-General's investigator.

They took Williamson to jail, searched him and locked him up. He demanded they call up Sheriff Wilcox. They did. "Let him out," said Wilcox. "Nosiree," ejaculated Willis. "Then arraign him right away." Wilcox demanded—and they did.

Williamson was charged with resisting—and held in $100, which he furnished. Today before Judge Frederick Rueckhart, Willis was prepared to prosecute, and Williamson asked a continuance till July 17—which was granted.

Deputy Sheriff Sanford Kinnecum stood in the door of the court room to see Williamson got fair play. He and Williamson went off together after the continuance was granted.

Attractions at Boston Theatres

Westminster Roof Garden.

The concert by Gustav Strube and his Symphony players at the Westminster Roof Garden, in Copley square, last evening was, perhaps the most brilliant ever given in a restaurant in New England. The acquisition of Mr. Strube, whose popularity as a conductor is nation-wide, and a number of Symphony players who have recently been engaged at the Pops, gives the Westminster a musical distinction that is not equaled by any other place of its kind in town. Conductor Strube has arranged a series of popular programs that are calculated to keep the Westminster Roof busy for many weeks to come.

Gloucester Trips.

The boats of the Gloucester line are making trips along the North Shore, where a deep sea sail may be enjoyed while viewing the beauties of the rugged coast.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

Violet Mascotte and her "Merry Maids" were seen in a new bill at the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday. There were other vaudeville features.

Lexington Park.

In the rustic theatre at Lexington Park yesterday two large audiences attended the vaudeville show. Heading the bill were Finlay and Burke, eccentric comedians, in a little bit of eccentricity, while "Three Devils" Johnny Reynolds thrilled the crowd with his acrobatic performances. Clark and Bergen in a musical comedy act, and Bert Howe, "The Rube, with the Green Umbrella," were encored time and again.

Norumbega Park.

A smart musical comedy was presented to two large audiences in the theatre at Norumbega Park yesterday. "A Day Off" was its title and it was presented by a company including a pair of excellent singers, real comedians and a chorus that was worth seeing.

Globe Theatre.

The Three O'Neil Sisters, a trio of sprightly young misses who sing and dance unusually well, headed the vaudeville list at the Globe yesterday. Bennie Pierce and Hilda Adams, pair of Hebrew comians, were happily received in their singing skit; Laveen and Cress, two athletes, had one of the most interesting acts of the season; the Carters made good in a singing, talking and ventriloquial sketch; and Ollie Wood, the "Little Miss Buster Brown" girl, scored with her specialty. The pictures were excellent, the local reel showing the various celebrations of the Fourth of July in and around Boston, including the Winthrop school children's parade.

Tremont Theatre.

"Quo Vadis" seems to grow upon the fancy of the Boston public, for, although it was the fourth week of the engagement that opened yesterday, the interest was as great as ever. The theatre was filled, and the various episodes were followed with the closest attention.

Paragon Park.

The crowds at Paragon Park, especially those at the Palm Garden, have heated all previous records thus far this season. Previous to fourth of July, Manager Hodge found that the popularity of his place had far exceeded that of any other year for the same period, but he had grave doubts of duplicating last year's record for the holiday. He thought he set a mark last year so high that it could never be reached again, but, much to his surprise, that record paled to insignificance when the results of last Friday were totalled up. Last Saturday was another record-breaker, and so was Sunday.

Several new features are found in the "cabaret" this week, although the list is headed by Sylvia in "poses plastique," who remains over for another week. For a times and Texas Tommy dancing specialty, Egan and De Mave have been secured for this week. They were enthusiastically received last evening. There are a dozen of the cabaret features.

Provincetown Trips.

The popularity of the 100-mile deep sea trip to Provincetown and return, made daily by the steamship Dorothy Bradford was well tested on July 4, when the full capacity of the steamer, 1,000, were taken aboard and over a 1,000 who wanted to take the trip were left on the wharf for lack of room. The Saturday and Sunday crowds also broke records on this line. On out days the comfort of this deep sea trip appeals to those who wish to escape the sultriness of the city, for there is not one minute of the trip that the excursionist is not fanned by cool ocean breezes.

The popularity of these trips and the attractions at these ocean resorts was well proven the last few days, especially on the fourth of July, when the travel beat all records ever known on the line. The shore dinners at Rass Point are not excelled on the Atlantic coast in popularity.

Orpheum Theatre.

St. James Theatre.

A well balanced program was presented at the St. James Theatre yesterday, headed by Cora Bevins and Company in a quaint comedy sketch entitled "Daddy." It was one of the best offerings ever seen at this theatre.

Rockefeller Male on 74th Birthday

CLEVELAND, July 8.—John D. Rockefeller is seventy-four years old. He is in excellent health, apparently as hale and hearty as he was twenty years ago. There were no special festivities at Forest Hill. Mr. Rockefeller played his daily game of golf, drove about his estate and spent the day quietly with Mrs. Rockefeller.

DONALD MEEK IS TOPLINER ON KEITH BILL

A packed house applauded Donald Meek, the popular character actor of the Castle Square Stock Company, on his appearance as a vaudeville topliner at B. F. Keith's Theatre. Mr. Meek and his company shared the headline laurels with "The Meistersingers in the Wild Woods."

"I Gotcha, Steve," a new one-act comedy, with Mr. Meek playing the part of "Josh" Frye, the town constable, scored a big hit. The robbery of the local post-office sends Frye hiking after a bandit. How he captures his quarry is what the playlet tells.

Mr. Meek's work was clever and entertaining throughout. He added to his versatile entertainment by introducing a song and dance.

"The Meistersingers" began their farewell week in their big scenic specialty, "In the Wild Woods." Their singing there were new soloists and new solos on the program—repeated the success of the singers since they have been appearing at Keith's.

Foster and Lovett, comedians, entertained with a singing and dancing turn. The Temuan trio did some excellent cyclist stunts. Maurice Golden and Grace de Winters made everybody happy with their "Kid Vaudeloquist." Carl McCullough was applauded for his "Footlight Impressions." Cathryn Chaloner and company put on "Kate's Press Agent," an amusing sketch.

Carson and Brown proved expert dancers, and the Bellezs, Roman ring artists, more than made good with the audience. The new kinetophone pictures ended a well balanced program of bright features.

Chicago's First Victim of 4th Dead

CHICAGO, July 8.—The first Fourth of July fatality in Chicago was recorded today. Warren Brookins, 14, died of a bullet wound in the abdomen. He and a boy companion were examining a revolver on July 4, when the weapon was accidentally discharged.

'HER HUSBAND'S WIFE' BILL AT THE PLYMOUTH

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

If you like comedy that moves briskly and still keeps within the bounds of good sense you will have no difficulty in enjoying "Her Husband's Wife," which came to Boston through the stock company route at the Plymouth last evening. It was a comedy good enough for the regular season at higher prices, although Henry Miller, who first produced it, laid it on the shelf before New England was reached.

Not a little of last evening's fine performance was due to the splendid interpretation of the play's characters by Miss Gordon and her associates. It was an amusing story of commonplace people who had many uncommon experiences. "Her Husband's Wife" was almost farcical, but not sufficiently so to keep it from being a good play for any season of the year.

After last evening's performance at the Plymouth there was plenty of excuse for repeating what has already been said before—that Miss Gordon and her company form a dramatic organization that has never been excelled by any stock organization in Boston. It is a company that would not only hold its own in all kinds of weather, but would find many loyal followers in the regular theatrical season.

Distinctly hilarious from the viewpoint of its audience, "Her Husband's Wife" dropped into the recklessness and noise of a farce only in its final moment. At other times it was simply an infectious comedy of the kind that puts you in good humor and keeps you there.

Miss Gordon carried the bulk of the evening's labors with a fine sense of humor, although as Irene Randolph she had a nonsensical time of it trying to undo her own mistake of picking out her husband's second wife, inasmuch as she expected to die from some unknown and unrecognizable malady, it was naturally very sweet of her to find a lady to take her place after the funeral. The humor of the situation broadened when the dowdy little woman she selected not only accepted the chance, but, inspired by her approaching responsibilities, transformed herself into a brilliant beauty. Complications grew rapidly, and there was a hearty laugh at every turn. Needless to say, the invalid wife headed off the impending disaster by recovering her health.

Miss Gordon made Irene Randolph's misery a genuine joy. She was the most humorously unhappy lady the stage has yielded for a long time. Miss Marie Chambers, a new-comer, was exceedingly good to look upon as Emily Ladew, the carefully selected second wife who failed to live up to specifications. Miss Chambers contributed an intelligent performance, but she could hardly be expected to act as well as she looked.

Douglas J. Wood and Wright Kramer were responsible for the safe and proper solution of many situations. Considering the limited opportunities for its preparation, the performance was a credit to the players who made it.

You can laugh at "Her Husband's Wife" without any trouble at all.

Test Public Dances at Peabody House

Motion pictures and public dances were given an initial trial at the Elizabeth Peabody House, No. 357 Charles street. This is the first time any of the Boston social settlements have tried these attractions as regular hot weather features.

The pictures are to be given every afternoon and evening in the Elizabeth Peabody Playhouse, while the dances take place in the gymnasium three evenings a week. The theatre will accommodate 400 people, while at least one hundred couples can make use of the dance hall.

SHORT WEIGHT AND SCALELESS ICE MEN FINED

The first prosecutions in the Boston Central Municipal Court for violations in the ice crusade were heard before Judge Ely today. Wolf Libby of No. 23 Garden street, Dorchester, a driver for the Boston Ice Company, was fined $20 for selling ice thirty-five pounds short. According to Julius Meyer, of Sealer of Weights and Measures Office, Libby sold 190 pounds of ice to Frank Venin of No. 86 Bedford street. When the ice was weighed by Meyer it weighed but 155 pounds.

In Malden Court today, Judge Bruce fined Jacob Moiger $10 for selling ice without having a scale.

Harry Berger, with a similar charge against him, told the court he had gone out of the ice business. His case was placed on file after an admonition by Judge Bruce, that if he re-enters the ice trade he shall buy a scale the first thing.

Henry Felder, an ice wagon driver for the Eagle Ice Company, charged with insufficient weight, sold to Matilda Morton, had his case continued until next Tuesday at the request of his counsel.

Stop Fugitive's Flight with Gun

Lisk ducked under the patrolman's arm and ran a winning race as far as the postoffice. Perry—distanced—drew his revolver and fired twice in the air. Lisk submitted to arrest. In court he was held in $1,000 for the Grand Jury, charged with breaking and entering.

Quick on the Trigger With a Snap-Shot Eye

THE crack trapshooter has to be a man with steady nerves and muscles absolutely under control—always ready, at the sudden jerk of a string to swing his gun into place and bring down his clay pigeon. This means trained, not to the minute, but to the split-second. He takes no chances with his nerves.

We present the names of some of these crack shots who smoke Tuxedo. They like to smoke; but they take no chances on a tobacco that might "throw them off." They use Tuxedo because it is mild, relaxing, steadying—strictly pure.

ALL PARDON HEARINGS TO BE IN PUBLIC

The practice of considering pardon cases behind closed doors has been discarded by the Executive Council, according to Edward F. Hamlin, executive secretary of the council.

There will be full publicity in connection with all future hearings of petitions for pardons, stated Mr. Hamlin today.

This announcement of the decision reached by the Executive Council to do away with the closed door policy, comes as a climax to a long campaign waged by the AMERICAN against secret hearings by the council on pardon matters. The AMERICAN has always opposed secrecy in the proceedings of all public bodies. "The public's business shall be done in public" has been the AMERICAN'S contention.

Consistent with the new policy of the council, Mr. Hamlin today announced to the newspapers that the council will give tomorrow a public hearing on the petition for the pardon of James P. Quigley of Somerville, who was sentenced in June, 1907, to from twelve to fifteen years in the State prison for an attempted assault upon a Somerville woman.

District Attorney John J. Higgins, who prosecuted the case, has recommended the pardon on the ground that "the young man has been punished enough and the ends of public justice have been attained." It is claimed that Quigley was under the influence of liquor at the time he made the attempt at assault.

The pardon committee of the council will hold a public hearing tomorrow on the petition for the pardon of David Farnsworth, the Civil War veteran of Bridgewater, serving a sentence of six months for manslaughter for the killing of Thomas Hagen, whom he shot, think Farnsworth, the Civil War veteran of long he was a ben thief.

THE PUBLIC'S BUSINESS MUST HEREAFTER BE CONDUCTED IN PUBLIC

The AMERICAN today won one step in its long fight for publicity when Executive Secretary Hamlin of the Governor's Council announced that hereafter the meetings of the Pardon Committee of the Council will be held in PUBLIC. This means which OPEN DOORS. Every one who is interested will be notified through the newspapers and the Governor's office.

The AMERICAN now begins its fight for open meetings of the Executive Council. Rule 11 must be abolished. Here it is:

All sessions of the Council shall be held with closed doors, and its proceedings shall be kept from the public, save copies of the Governor, or rule of the Council shall otherwise order.

Open those closed doors. Conduct the public's business in public.

GIRL HELD AT POLICE STATION TAKES POISON

LOWELL, July 8.—While United States officers and policemen were searching the countryside today for Arthur Richards, noised in police court by pretty Florence Welcome of Nashua in such a way as to suggest a prosecution under the White Slave act, the girl swallowed a dose of corrosive sublimate in the women's detention room of the Lowell police station.

Superintendent Redmond Welch entered the room just as the girl began to cough at the mouth. A medicine paper on the floor told the story. Salt water and milk were administered immediately. "O, let me die!" moaned the child.

FLORENCE WELCOME, who attempts suicide in Lowell police station.

"Let me die! I do not want to go with the United States officers. I do not want to go to the jail in Boston. I am sorry for what I told. I hate Richards and I hate all the men."

Dr. M. A. Tighe reported early this afternoon that the girl was out of danger and might be taken to Boston when the officers feel like moving her.

Richards, twenty-five, defaulting this bail today. He had been under arrest on the charge of maintaining a resort near Willowdale. The Welcome girl told of having accompanied him there from Nashua. She is seventeen years old. She also told of visits to the house by two fifteen-year-old girls from Nashua.

The Welcome girl was one of the figures in the Nashua, N. H., "vice war," inaugurated last January by Police Commissioner Bingay of the New Hampshire city. At that time she and another young girl corroborated the testimony of Jenny Dufour, a girl detective, regarding the "goings on" at several Nashua resorts.

She pleaded guilty and was fined $25.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 8.—Governor Sulzer announced the removal of Harry M. Kaiser as warden of the Clinton Prison at Dannemora, and immediately after it was reported in the State Capitol that George W. Blake, who made the special investigations of the State's prisons is in trouble and may soon retire to private life. Mr. Kaiser's sudden removal caused astonishment, as he was long warden of a prison to which Mr. Blake gave a clean bill of health in his sweeping inquiry.

GIRL SUICIDE JILTED BY BOSTON MAN, SAY MISS M'DUFF'S CHUMS

MISS TILTON.

So then until the last of life,
We'll think of thee, sweetheart or wife;
And whether fast or slow the whirl,
We'll ne'er forget thee—Tilton girl.

—Poem on Tilton, N. H., post card for which Miss McDuff posed for the photograph of the "Tilton Girl."

Agnes Firth MacDuff—the former Cambridge girl who killed herself in France last week—was jilted, her friends here say.

The girl, once the belle of Tilton, N. H., where she was born—later a counter clerk at a Boston store—and later still a student of aviation, was seen at Villacoublay, in France, with a young Englishman. He "chaperoned" her, he said, and secured her admission to the aviation school there.

Her letters, it is said, hinted at an unfortunate love affair. Whether this Englishman was the subject of it is not known, but people who remember when she lived on Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, say that the head of a big Boston business house called frequently to see her.

They add that she and this man eventually quarreled bitterly, and that she was morose for days afterwards, and finally went abroad, presumably to forget him.

Whether her suicide was due to infatuation with the Englishman, who was with her in France, or to her attachment to some Boston man, is not known.

Mr. Wilson, manager of the apartment house she occupied at No. 355 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, said:

Loved One Man.

Miss MacDuff loved out one man. The despatches say that an Englishman was with her until June 15, when he left her. She did not love him. She loved a Boston man. One of these days one party, or parties will get their deserved punishment. In my opinion he or they are responsible for the girl's death.

Investigation today revealed that the girl had led a romantic life. She was twenty-nine years old—born on St. Valentine's Day, 1884. When she was fourteen her father died. Then her mother moved to Denver, Col., and then back to Boston. The girl clerked at the glove counter in a downtown department store for a time. She had always wanted to learn to fly, but her mother would not hear of it.

Harriett McDuff, the girl's sister, teaches school in Los Angeles, and she invited Angie to visit her. The girl went—and took the chance to study aviation at the Los Angeles school. On her return she went to Hempstead, L. I., and last May went abroad for her final lessons.

Popular in Home Town.

On her visits to Tilton she charmed the people of her home town and was a favorite. She has two brothers—William J. McDuff at Lakeport, N. H., and Robert S. McDuff at Leominster.

Her relatives got the news of her death last Wednesday from the American consul at Paris.

The news of her strange death—a tragic end to a remarkable career, her acquaintances called it—came as a shock and surprise to all who knew her. None suspected she planned to slay herself, though she had complained in Cambridge of ill health and had seemed despondent.

Isle of Shoals Meetings.

ISLE OF SHOALS, July 8.—The Young People's Religious Union of the Unitarian Church will take possession of the Summer meetings here tomorrow, July 9, when it is expected that about 500 young people from all over New England will meet.

To Protect Hair and Skin in Summer

(National Beauty Notes.)

To quickly regain the rich color, gloss and soft texture which the hair loses through improper care, shampoo frequently with a teaspoonful of cantbrox dissolved in a cup of hot water. It is unequaled both as a cleansing preparation and as a stimulator of the hair roots and tissues. It leaves the hair soft, fluffy, lustrous and easy to manage.

Skin needs a thorough bath each day to remove the dust and oil, then a good face lotion, such as you can make from 4 ounces of spermax put into one-half pint witch hazel (or bay water), to which is added two teaspoonfuls of glycerine. After applying, rub face gently until dry. Faithful use of this lotion clears the skin of all impurities, removes the oily, sallow look, fine lines and prematurely aged appearance and restores the youthful tint and fine texture which paint and powder can only imitate.—Advertisement.

Rescues Drowning Woman; Gets Stare

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Andrew P. Talmadge, expert waterman, has a grouch against womankind. Last Summer Talmadge jumped overcoard, clothes and all, and rescued a young woman. In the rescue he was obliged to put his arm about her. She gave him an awful glare, but he attributed it to excitement. Today he met the young woman on the street. She did not speak.

BOARD OFTEN IN DARK ABOUT MELLEN ACTS

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., July 8.—The president of the New Haven Railroad can do thousands of things the directors do not or need not know about, according to an admission of President Mellen at Coroner Phelan's final hearing into the cause of the recent Stamford wreck.

There were many little matters of detail which were not brought to their attention, he said, and anything the president might do was final unless the board of directors saw fit to reverse his orders.

The coroner wishes to secure some more information as to technical matters, but says there will be no more public hearings. His finding is expected within a few weeks.

While he was testifying, Mr. Mellen appeared to be ill and very nervous. His knees twitched and his replies to questions were sometimes stammered as if he desired to break away from the advice of the lawyers and talk freely.

In reply to one question he said:

I would be glad to answer that if I were a free man, not under indictment. I have got to undergo trial, I think very unjustly. I would like to talk frankly and freely as a layman, but I am yoked up with others in my indictment. If I answer the question about authority over tracks and trackage, may it not be—I am arguing as a layman—that I will incriminate those with whom I am yoked up and so indirectly incriminate myself.

Upon this plea, Coroner Phelan excused President Mellen from making further answers.

$100,000 LOSS IN FACTORY FIRE AT NO. ADAMS

NORTH ADAMS, July 8.—Early today the $100,000 fire which destroyed the main biscuit factory of H. W. Cark, and partially destroyed twelve tenements, driving scores of families from their homes, was reported under control.

Deputy Fire Chief Reese Bixby, who suffered a slight shock about a year ago, suffered another shock when he came in sight of the fire and is now in the North Adams Hospital. He fell from Hose 1 wagon.

The fire started in a grease hood in the biscuit factory. It was discovered by Watchman Kimpton, who was dragged from the burning building after sending in the alarm, by Patrolman Pierce Walsh. Kimpton nearly lost his life some months ago when his own home burned.

ORDER INQUEST INTO DEATH OF GIRL IN LAKE

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 8.—Whether or not Miss Alice Crispwell, the pretty, young woman whose body was found yesterday in Harvey's Lake, died a victim of her infatuation for a man was the problem which the authorities set out today to fathom.

Herbert Johns, twenty-four, who was last seen with her on the night of Miss Crispwell's disappearance July 4, and who has since been arrested, denied any responsibility for his sweetheart's death, saying she was standing on the bank of the lake when he left her near midnight on the Fourth.

Persons living in the vicinity of the lake heard screams about the same time Johns says he and Miss Crispwell separated. A coroner's autopsy has been ordered. The girl's family said that she had been almost constantly in Johns' company for several months.

PEARL MARRAM, witness of Roxbury man's death under auto in Haymarket Square.

The police renewed their search today for several persons who are said to have been witnesses to the killing of Frank Strug by an auto truck in Haymarket square Sunday afternoon.

William H. Dwyer, No. 105 Hammond street, is under $5,000 bonds pending his trial in the central police court on a charge of manslaughter, July 27.

The principal witness against Dwyer is Miss Pearl Marram, sixteen, of No. 85 Proper street, West End. She says the car was being driven at the rate of thirty miles an hour, and that Strug had no opportunity of getting out of its way. She also says Dwyer failed to blow his horn until within a few feet of Strug. The latter was twenty-one, and lived at No. 46 Ward street, Roxbury.

ENJOIN WIDOW TO SAVE RICH MAN WHIPPING

Mrs. Mary F. Robertson threatto horsewhip John H. C. Church, BECAUSE, she says:

He insts his automobile horn every time he passes her.

Drives in front of her so as to allow the dust to blow over her.

Has been continually disrespectful to her.

Has persistently humiliated her.

SO

She bought a horsewhip.

SO

BUT

Though Mrs. Robertson has searched all western Massachusetts for a lawyer to fight her case, she can't find one who will take it.

GREAT BARRINGTON, July 8.—Haled before the District Court today on the complaint of a Berkshire millionaire that she had bought a rawhide whip and was "making threats" against him, a pretty and plump little widow was bound over to "keep the peace" in bonds of $200.

The pretty widow is Mrs. Mary E. Robertson, thirty-five years old, who lives in Van Dusenville.

The millionaire complainant is county Commissioner John H. C. Church. Mr. Church is the treasurer and principal stockholder of the big Mountment Mills at Housatonic. He is a director in the Mahaiwe National Bank. He is well known throughout the county.

Could Not Tell Story.

Mrs. Robertson was not permitted to tell all her story in court, but it is well known outside. She came to Van Dusenville four years ago from New York, following the death of her husband.

The county commissioner, she claims, has continually annoyed, pestered and insulted her. He has called her derisive names, she says. He has tooted the horn of his automobile at her.

If he was ahead of her carriage in the roadway, she complains, he would keep his motor car immediately in front and thus block the highway. On other occasions, the widow says, Church made her take the dust.

Secured Rawhide Whip.

Two or three days ago, Church sat in his car, just outside the Great Barrington Postoffice. Mrs. Robertson, calling there, saw him and exploded. In forcible, concise and unmistakable English, the widow told the County Commissioner exactly what she thought of him. This done, she said to have told him what she proposed to do to him.

When she bought a rawhide whip, immediately afterwards, Church swore out a warrant. Today's proceedings in Judge Sanford's court were the immediate result.

The commissioner was not there. Chief of Police Beckman asking that Mrs. Robertson be bonded to keep the peace.

That the pretty widow had herself considered some action at law is believed to have been indicated when, some days ago, she advertised in the county press for the address of some good attorney who wasn't afraid to take a bold case.

Children's Prayers for Mother Answered

Mrs. Frost, Who Shot Herself in Somerville, May Recover.

The prayers of Blanche and Melvin Frost, children of Mrs. Alice Brigham Frost, that their mother will recover from her attempt to shoot herself, after she had slightly wounded Arthur T. Holt, a chauffeur, bid fair to be answered.

Mrs. Frost, who also wishes to recover for her children's sake, is said at the Somerville hospital, to be progressing favorably, although she is not yet out of danger.

Holt is also a patient at the same hospital, and will be detained there for a few days, until his wound, which is not serious, completely heals.

Grand Duke Caught in Gambling Raid

LONDON, July 8.—One of the smartest places in Mayfair was raided when the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, a member of the royal household, was in it. The wife of a former officer of the guards told the police the grand duke was present.

They left without making arrests.

Retire Patrolman Shot by Bandits

Patrolman Edward McMahon, who still bears, imbedded in his heart, a bullet from one of the revolvers used by the Jamaica Plain bandits, has been retired from the police department on a pension of $850 a year. He has served in the department nearly ten years.

Rescue Worcester Driver from Mob

WORCESTER, July 8.—It is said no charge will be preferred against Isidor Tevelli, a teamster, whose wagon killed a five-year-old Italian boy. The police saved Tevelli from being lynched.

Tour in Gettysburg Delegation Injured

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The members of the Massachusetts delegation who attended the fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg, left for home today. Six members of the delegation were slightly injured, near Baltimore, when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by an electric car on Boyerstown road, near the Maryland Confederate Soldiers' Home. They were: Councillor Edward L. Collins of the Governor's council, shaken up; Representative James Ferguson of Millbury, sprained ankle; Representative James Donovan of Cambridge, shaken up; Representative Joseph Mason of Ward 24, Dorchester, shaken up.

Buzzards Bay Fire Menaces Shipping

BUZZARDS BAY, July 8.—A large property loss will result from a fire which broke out early today in the machine shops of the Forest Clark Construction Company, and which for a time threatened the shipping along the Cape Cod Canal. Lighters, barges and towboats were moved from their slips to escape the flames.

The new railroad bridge over the canal was also endangered, and was protected by help sent by the railroad.

The machinery, most of it valuable, in the shop, was a total loss. The fire evidently started from a forge, although

Welsh May Be Given Date with Ritchie

Vancouver Promoters Want to Sign English Champion With San Francisco Boy.

By JACK CONWAY.

FREDDY WELSH, the English lightweight champion, may be the next opponent of Willie Ritchie. Boxing promoters in Vancouver, B. C., are trying to arrange for a meeting between these two sterling ring men. If Ritchie agrees to battle Welsh, the contest will take place in September.

Ritchie has been besieged with offers to go on the stage again since he whipped Joe Rivers so decisively on the Fourth of July. The champion says that if he does decide to show before the footlights it will only be for four or five weeks, as he does not care to make a long tour over the vaudeville circuit like he did after winning the world's lightweight title from Ad Wolgast on last Thanksgiving Day.

Ritchie and Welsh would undoubtedly make an interesting fight, but the Frisco boy would rule a big favorite. The followers of the glove game are now convinced that Ritchie is a regular champion and if he clashes with Welsh he will have plenty of backers.

WELSH HAS BEATEN RITCHIE.

RITCHIE and Welsh have already fought once. The bout took place at Vernon, Cal., on November 30, 1911, and Welsh won the referee's decision after twenty rounds of fast fighting.

Welsh was originally scheduled to meet Wolgast but the Cadillac "Wildcat" was stricken with appendicitis on the eve of the day set for the bout and it was necessary to procure a substitute to meet Welsh.

At that time Ritchie was with Packey McFarland, who was listed to bet Tommy Murphy. The Coast lad was not in very good condition, but when he received an offer to fight Welsh he packed his grip and started for Tom McCarey's arena in Vernon.

WAS TIRED BUT HAPPY.

RITCHIE was tired but happy when he reached the end of his journey. McCarey did not know Willie personally and was surprised when he discovered that he was only a slip of a boy just out of his teens.

At first McCarey did not want to put Ritchie against the skilled Welsh, who had been training for weeks. He thought it would be asking too much of the boy. Ritchie, however, begged McCarey to give him a chance to take Wolgast's place.

McCarey finally consented to let Ritchie meet Welsh. The boxer from across the Atlantic ruled a top-heavy favorite and it was believed that he would stop his young opponent in a few rounds. To the surprise of all, Ritchie gave him a hard battle and Welsh's advantage was not any too large at the end of the twentieth stanza.

WELSH CLAIMS TITLE.

SINCE Ritchie won the world's lightweight championship from Wolgast, Welsh has been declaring that he is the real champion as a result of his victory over Ritchie in 1911. He probably has carefully forgotten that Ritchie did not have any time to train for that bout and also that he was then only breaking into the fight game.

If Welsh and Ritchie clash in September, the English champion will discover that the Frisco boster has mastered a great deal about "inside boxing" since he took Wolgast's place at Vernon in 1911, and that he has developed a right hand punch which has sent such rugged fighters as Wolgast and Rivers to the canvas.

CROSS MAY MEET CHAMPION.

IT would not be a bad idea to match Leach Cross with Joe Rivers. These men have swapped ponches twice in ten-round bouts in New York and a third meeting between them over the twenty-round route on the coast would be a good ring card.

Cross, of course, would much rather clash with Ritchie than with "Mexican Joe." There is a chance that the New York dentist will be given a date with the champion in September.

GALLANT AFTER BALDWIN.

GILBERT GALLANT, the Chelsea Lightweight, is taking things easy just now but is open to meet any of the leading lightweights. Gallant was scheduled to battle "Young" Saylor in Indianapolis, but it looks as though the match has fallen through.

We would like to see Gallant and Baldwin clash again at the Atlas Club. Such a bout would be sure and draw a big crowd as Matty and Gilbert are old rivals and when they last met Baldwin was a questionable decision after twelve rounds of hard fighting.

PILGRIMS OPEN AT HOME TODAY WITH ST. LOUIS

The Pilgrims will open up a long stay at the South End Grounds today with St. Louis as their first opponent. This afternoon's game will be the first of a series of five contests with the Cardinals, which will be played in three days. This means a double-header tomorrow and Thursday and will keep Stallings' men on the jump.

After the Cardinals quit town the other Western teams will come in order. The Pilgrims have been very successful against their Western opponents this season and mean to make the best of this stretch of games and incidentally make up for their poor showing on the trip to New York, Brooklyn and Philadelphia which they just completed.

Walter Maranville and Charley McDonald will surely be remembered today for the great service they have rendered to the teams during the last trip away from home. Maranville has electrified the crowds of people who have visited the Philadelphia, Brooklyn and New York ball parks by his sensational fielding. McDonald took the load among the individual batters of the National League some time ago, and it looks as though he means to keep it. He is batting over the .400 mark now, and if he continues to hit at his present gait the other heavy sticksers of the old league will find it a difficult task in trying to catch up with him.

"Lefty" Tyler, who did not pitch during the series in Philadelphia, will probably start in the game today. "Slim" Salee or Gribee will twirl for the Cardinals.

The Phillies and Pilgrims split even in yesterday's double-header, the Pilgrims winning the first by the score of 15 to 11, and the Phillies capturing the second contest by a score of 3 to 2, in twelve innings.

No games are scheduled in the American League today, as the Eastern and Western teams are changing places.

Catcher Gossett of the New York Yanks will be out of the game during the Yanks' Western tour, owing to a smashed finger sustained in the double-header with the Senators yesterday. Each team won a game.

Jack Knight, who has been in and out of the American League several times, has been bought from the Jersey City club of the International League by the New York Yanks.

Elder, a recruit from Minnesota, made a poor showing in his debut as pitcher for the Detroit Tigers in the Detroit-St. Louis game yesterday. He was hit for a double, three singles and walked five men in three and a third innings at St. Louis. St. Louis had an easy victory.

First Baseman Borton of the Yankees has been released by Manager Frank Chance to the Jersey City club of the International League.

FRENCH STARS IN RACES AT REVERE TONIGHT

Jimmy Moran of Chelsea, he veteran six-day rider and pace follower, will have for a competitor tonight at the Revere track a man against whom he rode thirteen years ago, in one of the most famous six-day races ever ridden.

That man is Caesar Simar, the old-time French plugger and pace follower. Julian Rudolphe, the phenomenal young Frenchman, who has electrified followers of the paced game in Continental Europe, and who eliminated marvelous speed at the world's championships at Newark last year, will go against Worth Mitten of Davenport, Ia., in the second five-mile heat and all four riders will compete in the fifteen-mile paced race.

As the race will be decided upon a point system, the Americans figure that they will win enough points to assure them of victory.

Jack Knight Back with Highlanders

NEW YORK, July 8.—Manager Chance of the New York Americans announced tonight the sale of First Baseman Frank Borton to the Jersey City club of the International League. Borton came to the New York club from the Chicago Americans in the deal for Hal Chase.

To fill the gap at first base, Chance has purchased Jack Knight, the former New York, Washington, Athletic and Boston infielder, from Jersey City. Knight was traded from New York to Washington last year for Catcher Street, and from Washington he went to Jersey City. He has been hitting strong in the International League this year.

Chance also disposed of Dan Costello, the Mt. St. Mary's College infielder, to the Lowell club of the New England League. Tom Hanley, the Manhattan College left-hander, has been unconditionally released.

Dabney Defeats ex-Champion Behr

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 8.—Lawn tennis players of the ranking division began their matches today on the turf courts of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club in the Atlantic cup singles. The one upset that went down on the card was the defeat of Karl H. Behr, the former intercollegiate, by A. S. Dabney of Boston, at 3—6, 6—3, 6—2. Behr was unsteady on his volleys, working his own downfall at the net.

W. M. Washburn, the young Harvard player who recently won the metropolitan championship, defeated H. H. Whitman, 6—2, 4—6, 6—2.

R. D. Little and W. J. Clothier, former national champion, also won by good judgment and skill.

Cooper Is Winner.

TACOMA, Wash., July 8.—Cooper in a Stutz car won the 250-mile free-for-all automobile road race here yesterday over a three and a half-mile course. Lewis in a Flat car was second; Hughes in a Lozier car third; Endicott in an Endicott special was fourth; Cooper's time for the 250 miles was 3:32:08 1-5.

SCORE A. A. U. FOR CONDITIONS AT BIG GAMES

By THOMAS J. HALPIN.

The National track and field championships, which were held last Saturday in Chicago, proved to be the biggest [illegible] ever been given in the [illegible] line. The games were well advertised weeks in advance as the two great [illegible] Olympic contests. Every effort was made to give publicity to the approaching [illegible] and the conditions were to be the best ever seen in an athletic exhibition in this country.

Up to a few years ago the National A A U [illegible] was the ribbon [illegible] Athletes from all parts of the country came to [illegible] and [illegible] the biggest event of the year and [illegible] to get a chance to [illegible] in it.

A. A. U. Is at Fault

Recently the Amateur A. [illegible] has looked only toward the financial side of granting it the games and the result was gloriously apparent in the [illegible] contests.

While the A A U [illegible] be held responsible for the [illegible] of the [illegible] in the [illegible] of the [illegible] of a big meet [illegible] to [illegible] is the [illegible] and a solution and the privilege of holding the games.

They have repeatedly granted these games to [illegible] and taken scarcely a [illegible] advertisement and [illegible] gate. The Chicago games were [illegible] for that purpose and the result [illegible] a small fund to which [illegible] and [illegible] by former contests had dripped.

Track Hastily Constructed.

On arriving at Chicago the athletes went to examine the field and the conditions under which they were to compete. They found an impoverished, hastily constructed, soft dirt and cinder track, which [illegible] more by laying a few [illegible] on a grass plot in a vacant [illegible].

Temporary stands had been hastily constructed, for which [illegible] of admission ranging from fifty cents to $1.50 were charged. No accommodations were made for the athletes and everywhere were indications of what the games were held in contempt.

The management of these games can not be too harshly censured for creating the impression that every athlete who journeyed from [illegible] States to that city had in mind the idea from New England had [illegible] of obtaining a fine three-day [illegible] and great were the protestations [illegible] times that would be returned.

Taber Greatly Disappointed.

To cite one incident – Norman Taber, the Brown University athlete now competing for the B. A. A., had given up all idea of running any [illegible] but when he thought [illegible] had another opportunity to try for a place record he consented to go to the [illegible] and be trained for several weeks after the [illegible] season closed. Bringing his disappointment [illegible] he observed the track for the first time and realized that all of the work had been in vain.

The New York representatives will never forgive the A A U for allowing the best set of games under its jurisdiction go to Chicago. Both the Irish-American and New York A. C. athletes were loud in their condemnations of the controlling body of amateur athletics and freely voiced their feelings to this effect.

To make the criticism more justifiable is the fact that in Chicago there exists one of the greatest athletic fields in the country.

Marshall Field, which is owned by Chicago University, has one of the best Stadiums and one of the finest running tracks that can be found in this country.

All of the athletes, trainers and coaches who went to the Windy City to take part in the games are at a loss to understand why the people of that city who contributed towards the fund to bring the games there, did not insist on having them held on that park.

The A A U can well afford to pay the expenses of these contests and for the betterment of athletics they should do so at once, or, at least, give the star athletes enrolled in its fold, who are the real foundation of its body, a fair chance to compete for the National titles.

MITCHELL'S SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

EVERY member of the Red Sox squad is on his way to St. Louis, except Forrest Cady, the catcher, who has a sore arm and will stay at home with the comrades are trying to get back to where they were before the Woodrow Wilson party. If the Reds took a fall out of them. What the Senators did to our highly prized athletes was a sad affair and better not be mentioned any more. Our friends fared a little better with the Athletics, winning two and losing three.

THE writer had quite a long talk with Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, just before he left for the West. Mack believes that the Red Sox are in the same fix that his team was in last year.

"It is true that I had a couple of good players on my team last year," said the clever leader of the Athletics, "but they didn't lose the pennant for me and I told the rest of my boys the same thing when they complained to me about the two men in question. Everybody was off. No one played the game as he knew how to play it. That is just what your Red Sox are doing this season, to my mind.

"The Red Sox began to get good three or four years ago the same time my team began to get good. At the time teams have been very even matched ever since. I have always told my boys that the Boston team was one to look out for and I say so yet.

"THE Red Sox, as I said, are going about the game as my team went last year. And I think the reason for it is that the strain of winning the American League championship and the world's championship stays with a winning team throughout the next season. Perhaps I had better say the effects of the strain is evident the following season. They start out in the Spring feeling confident that they can repeat. Then when they begin losing games they do not gingger up, but instead, they relax. They remember the strain of the previous season and they dodge the strain. That is why a championship team does not always come back, in my opinion."

"CLARKE GRIFFITH says the Athletics are ready to crack soon. "What about that?" Connie was asked.

"No chance in the world," replied Mack. "If they do it will be a miracle, that's all. All our boys are confident. I don't see how they can stop us."

"You seem to be using boys of pitchers this season. There are not many that seem able to go through."

"That is true. I am in a position to change 'em often this year and I don't hesitate to make a change. Hoyt is a comer but he is inclined to pitch six or seven innings and then stay until I see begin to hammer him and then I take him out. Bush is improving all the time and he will make a good man for me. Bender is all right and can go through a full game any time.

"NO sir, my pitchers are all right. They are as good as any team in Washington has only one good pitcher. The Red Sox are none too well off this year; that is, the Boston pitchers are not going the way they did last season. New York is not up to the average. Detroit is the same way. There are three teams that are well supplied, however, and their staff of twirlers overbalances the rest of the team. They are Chicago, St. Louis and Cleveland. Aside from these three teams, my pitchers are as good as any of them. We are out to win the pennant and I believe we will do it."

MR. BROWN of Philadelphia pitched a very tidy game up to the ninth inning of the first double-header. He might have gone through, but Connie Mack was inking no chances, in spite of the good lead of the Athletics and he sent Chief Bender in to relieve him with two on and one down, after three runs had been recorded in the last of the ninth. The first of these came in the opening round and was a dinky fly to short left field, by Yerkes. Oldring ran down it but the ball got by him and before he could recover it Stere was on third. The hit was only a single at best. The other hit was from the bat of Gardner in the second. This was a sure enough single, being a liner to left. Then for six innings not a Reding reached first base in the ninth Brown passed the first pass to Henriksen, who beat I for Bedient. Hooper came up with a single Yerkes doubled Speaker scored and Lewis forced him, Gardner to and and then Brown was canned for the Chief.

COLLINS and Bedient were both touched up in the first game. Collins only batted part of one inning. Bedient replacing him after four hits, two stolen bases and a pass had yielded four runs. Bedient stopped further damage in that round, but got bumped himself in the third, when the Athletics hammered him for four hits and two runs.

IT was in the second game that the Red Sox turned the tables on the Mackmen, knocking Dark, their old hoodoo, out of the box in two rounds. Houck, who repeated the southpaw, limited Collins to one inning and Wyckoff held it out. The Red Sox didn't do the grand stand trick but they didn't have to. Mack figured the game I set before it was half ended and gave Coakley McInnis and Oldring a little rest, sending Orr, Harry Davis and Walsh in to take their place. Davis was appointed when he stepped to the plate for the first time in the sixth inning. He was always a favorite in Boston.

CHESTER THOMAS, who caught Joe Wood in the second game and caught him well, was brimming over with pepper. The way he kept up his chatter kept the other Red Sox on the jump and they looked more like champions than they have looked for a long time. Thomas has been warming the bench for a year and a half. The chances are that he will get plenty of work behind the bat from now on.

PLANK and Wood are a regular sawmill combination of box artists. Plank thought he was monkeying with the buzzsaw in the first two innings. The Red Sox pounded him for six hits, including a tripe.

HEINIE WAGNER'S home run off Pitcher Houck in the second game was the hardest drive ever seen in Fenway Park. It sailed half over the centre fielders head and landed beyond the bleacher seats and rolled past the flag pole to the extreme corner of the grounds.

THE Pilgrims are here this afternoon for a long session on home grounds. They will tackle the Western clubs in turn, starting with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Buck" O'Brien Joins White Sox Tomorrow

"Buck" O'Brien dropped around to the Boston American League club offices at Fenway Park yesterday, drew the pay that was coming to him, said "good bye" and left for Chicago on the afternoon train. He will report to Manager Jimmy Callahan of the White Sox at Comiskey Park tomorrow, for today will be an off day in Chicago baseball. Buck will reach Chicago this afternoon.

LITTLE LOST SISTER By Virginia Brooks

A Story of the Author's Own Experiences in Chicago's Underworld

What Has Gone Before:

The opening chapters of Virginia Brooks' striking story of the underworld, "Little Lost Sister," contain the author's explanation of methods employed by white slavers of the System to entrap young girls in cities and country towns everywhere.

Miss Brooks unfolds her adventures as a waitress in a downtown cafe, depicts herself as a clerk in a big department store and gives her experience with the girls employed at the "doll" counter. Then follows a pathetic recital of a little hungry girl's fight to earn an honest living.

One chapter is devoted to the "Cafe Sinister," which is a girl trap. Today the Segregated Home is dealt with.

Now Go on with the Story

CHAPTER VI.

The "Segregated" Home

CLARA HOLMES is a dear little girl from a country town only fifty miles from Chicago. If it hadn't been that I was investigating the conditions surrounding newly arrived immigrant girls at the Dearborn street station, there is no telling what might have happened to the child.

I was in a telephone booth calling in the headquarters of the Immigrants' Protective Association when Clara attracted me. She appeared to be embarrassed by the attentions of a dapper youth who insisted on looking after her suit case and other impediments. That is why I spoke to her. She looked into my eyes and I saw that she was trembling.

"What's the matter?" I asked, "do you afraid of something?"

"Hush!" she whispered. "Don't let him hear—I'm afraid of him."

"Your young man?" I marveled. "Who is he?"

"I don't know," said the child. "He was on the train and lent me some magazines to read. Then he began talking to me and before we arrived he wanted me to go with him to his aunt's house, because I told him I was a stranger in Chicago. He says his aunt is a fine woman and that she will take care of me, but somehow I don't trust him."

I looked around for the solicitous young man, but he was nowhere to be seen. The moment he saw me talking to Clara he took alarm.

I told Clara she had been very lucky to escape "auntie's" tender ministrations and determined to keep her under my own wing. She was very grateful. I had been somewhat upset and attracted my attention by—in a flash it came to me—Simp Simon of [illegible].

Telephones to the Y. W. C. A.

[illegible] that the Y. W. C. A. was the place for Clara. What more fitting than that the great organization which advertises its guardianship and protection of the young girl so widely should take care of this lonely child in search of work? Clara told me she had a total capital of $22.

Now what follows is an actual telephone conversation between the Y. W. C. A. management and myself.

Hello, is this Main 1234?

Yes" (sharply).

Can you provide room and board for a young girl who has just arrived from the country?

Yes" (indifferently).

On the spur of the moment I determined to personate Clara in order that I might the more readily emphasize to the cold-voiced woman at the end of the line this poor child's necessities.

I am Clara Holmes," I said. "I do not know any one in Chicago, and I'm afraid I just want a room until I can get work. Can't you let me have anything for less than $1.50 a day?

Oh, you don't want a permanent room, then?" said the woman.

No, just by the day," I said, "at least for the present until I can find work."

"Well," the voice repeated, "our rates are one-fifty to two dollars, and if you desire to attempt any other arrangement you'll have to see the superintendent.

"I'm here all alone at the station and I don't know the streets or anything," I pleaded. I believe my voice was tearful—I tried to make it so.

There was no response from the other end of the line. I waited to make sure not a word.

"May I speak to the superintendent and find out if there can be any reduction?" I urged at last.

No, she's lying down and cannot be disturbed now," was the retort, positively snapped at me.

"Is there any one I can speak to who will know about this?" I suggested.

"No, you'd better come down here this afternoon or evening," was the final word. I waited for some sort of direction, as to how I might reach this open-hearted, broad-bosomed refuge for the stranger girl within our gates, but none came, not another word. I heard the phone click. The representative of the Y. W. C. A. had "hung up."

Finds Place at $4 a Week

I turned to Clara, who stood by, evidently wondering what my conversation meant. I told h

Later I passed her with some people I know well who gave her a neat little room and board for $4 a week. She is employed at a fair salary and we are great friends.

It was this episode that prompted me to look into the methods of what I call "segregated" homes in Chicago.

To have judged the Young Woman's Christian Association management from the one incident related would have been unfair, so I called up no less than five times on varying pretexts and endeavored to reach the heart of that doubtless admirable institution on behalf of as many poor, friendless girls in the great city. I failed, despite the fact that at the last my appeals were pathetic enough to have moved a monument.

It has been the boast of this institution that most of its support is obtained from "transients"—the Claras who arrive in Chicago looking for work with very little money in their pockets. What these girls need is a respectable home where board and room can be had at a low rate—low enough to tide them over until they have traversed that dangerous period between arrival and employment.

I say that when any institution becomes so ponderous that it loses its human touch, that the possibility of personal contact is gone, the thing to do is to tear it down and begin again. The usefulness of such a home is gone.

There must be and there will be homes for girls in Chicago quite as well appointed as the Y. W. C. A., or any other similar institution that has a long list of rules. It is all very proper, generally speaking, that the young woman should be in her bed by 10:30 o'clock at night, as these places demand, but what girl of any self-respect will submit, if she can help it, to asking for passes or signing any sort of explanation as to why her hour of return is 11:30 instead of 10:30?

At Party or a Theatre

Suppose the girl has a theatre invitation; can she return by 10:30, or must she leave the theatre to rush for the segregated home in order to avoid seeing her name on the "shameful" sheet, the list of girls who got in late?

Suppose the girl only goes to an evening party, if that party be on the extreme North Side or the extreme South or West. It takes an hour to reach home from either direction, so if the girl of the "segregated" home arrives at the party at 8 or 8:30 she has from an hour to an hour and a half which she may spend with her friends if she desires to live up to the rules of the institution.

Not one girl in fifty has as much money as Clara had when she came to Chicago. Most of them have less than $10. How far would that go at $1.50 to $2 a day?

So the point I am trying to make is that the great majority of young girls arriving in Chicago daily are not eligible to the "homes" that are supposed to await them. They must have cheaper accommodations, cheaper meals than the Y. W. C. A. would give them, perhaps, but they must live.

And another important change that must be made in the conduct of "homes" for working girls is the elimination of that charity stigma which most of them manage to convey in one way or another. For instance, some of these places say that they will reduce the rate to meet the condition of a girl who is short of money and perhaps they will, but the girl is made to feel and understand that she is an object of charity, however well meant, and that is a dangerous feeling to put in the heart of a girl. There is nothing in the world she loves better than to be independent.

Too many rules, too many restrictions, too much of the institutional atmosphere, too little of the human touch—these are the faults of the modern charitable caravansary.

Thousands of young women prefer to retain the personal freedom, even in less desirable accommodations than are offered in "segregated" homes.

Here is an incident that strikes me as important: I saw a very pretty girl at the entrance to one of the rooms of the Y. W. C. A. She so attracted me that I asked the superintendent in charge who she might be. The reply was

"I have no idea—we have so many girls it is impossible to keep track of them all."

That one little retort explained a great deal.

Girls who have to seek for work often find it necessary, when they are only temporarily employed at some daylight occupation, to continue the search for permanent employment during their evening hours. In the "home" that insists on arbitrary rules of conduct so many difficulties are placed in the way that thousands of young women prefer to retain their personal freedom, even in less desirable accommodation. It is this condition that must be overcome before the "homes" can successfully meet the requirements of a pressing need.

It is perhaps fitting to point out here how girls are driven to despair by other agencies than those of the "white slave" directorate. Scandaling accredited business concerns that make young girls their special victims are to be taken into consideration.

Take the case of Agnes Howe, a bright-eyed, pretty little blond girl from Iowa. I looked into her story and know that it is true in every particular.

Agnes lived in a country town and taught school there. She saw an advertisement in a Chicago paper for girl solicitors. It was a profit-sharing proposition. The girls were to be given drawing accounts approximating $7 a week and a percentage upon which the advertisement said they could realize as high as $20 a day.

The commissions were to go into a fund to be given to the girls when they resigned to their homes. It was supposed to be a plan to furnish funds for higher education. It was a vicious, mean swindle.

Many of the girls under the terms of their contracts made as high as $20 a day. Fifty were employed. At the end of the season, after their work was done, they all woke up to find the others closed, their employers gone.

Nearly every one of those girls was penniless. They were thrown without notice on their own resources. Agnes told me she was ashamed to go home because she did not want her people to know she had been taken in. So Agnes and four other friends went to work in a department store at $7 a week and they still remain in Chicago.

Two girls Agnes gave their names to were in debt about $9 each when the swindling employers left town and the woman with whom they lived offered to introduce them to a woman on the South Side who would teach them how to make a living by painting on china and board them until they mastered the

Once more they were swindled—worse, for the women who taught china painting taught other things not so harmless. The girls did not find out until it was too late. But they had entered one of those numerous traps set by "Watchful Johnny" of the System for unwary feet. One of the children was taken home by her father after he had scattered the contents of two weeks' and he would have been found guilty but for the testimony of persons who brought reputable men to bear in the proper quarter.

The other girl is today [illegible] denizen of the underworld and her days are numbered. What became of the other forty-eight I do not know, but the possibilities are horrible enough.

GIRL BLAMES Y. W. C. A. FOR SUICIDE TRY

"I was lonely, and the Y. W. C. A. is so cold and inhuman," are the reasons given today by Miss Florence Alexander, aforesaid, of No. 2 Tremont place, for taking poison in a suicide attempt. She is recovering at the City Hospital. She said:

There is no man in the case. First, the Y. W. C. A. turned me out at 10:30 at night because I came in late. I went to Revere Beach on a Sunday, and they told me they'd give me just one more chance if I wanted to stay there. Then on the next Wednesday night one of the girls at my factory, whose mother drinks, came over with a tale of how her mother had locked the house up and gone away, and she wanted me to go with her to hunt her up.

I told one of the matrons, and she was going with us as chaperone; but while we two girls were waiting for her on the corner my friend begged me not to drag any outsiders into it, so we went along. And when I returned at 10:30 Mrs. Bennett, the matron, turned me out.

Mrs. Bennett herself is away on vacation, and her assistant, Miss Clark, denies the girl was turned out at 10:30.

Miss Clark says the girl is welcome to come back to the Y. W. C. A. any time she will agree to obey rules. It is a houseful of about thirty girls and women, half of whom are under age.

CASSIDY FINDS CLEAN BAKERIES IN NORTH END

Mr Cassidy investigated a complaint made to him of the unsanitary conditions of the bakeries of the North and West Ends yesterday. His investigation proved that the complaint was unfounded. He found light, airy bakeshops, run under proper sanitary conditions and union rules. Incidentally he noticed shocking conditions in certain candy and soft drink stores. He praises the bakeries and condemns the soft drink retailers.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

I want to praise today the bakers of the North and West Ends of Boston. In a visit paid to several shops yesterday I found them complying with every precaution to protect the public health.

In the shops I visited I found ceilings and walls bright and cheerful looking after fresh coats of white-wash. The floors were well kept and clean. Plumbing was separated from the bakeshop by wooden partitions.

The men employed were mostly union men. They talked and acted like men thoroughly content with their working conditions. Their bread and cakes came from clean looking ovens, the tempting morsels as one could wish to see.

I have written about dishonest bakers, who use foul-smelling, rotten eggs in the preparation of their pies and cakes. It gives me great pleasure today to praise these bakers who run their shops as bakeshops should be run.

Cheap Candy Stores.

But throughout the North and West Ends I found cheap candy stores and soda water places which I would recommend for an early investigation by the Board of Health.

There's a candy store on Barton street leading from Lowell street, which is one of the dirtiest retail stores I ever saw. A lot of cheap candies of several varieties lay in a dirty, dusty show window. Through the unscreened door came swarms of flies from the gutter and street.

Biz flies crawled over the candy trying unnerved in the sun. While I stood looking in the filthy, shameless candy woman in bare feet came to the door.

"How long have those lain there?" I asked her, pointing to a tray of candy balls of pale pink color but literally black with dust.

She assured me in broken English the candies were not there for sale. She naively explained the dirt came from the children rolling the candy balls along the floor.

I passed on. A few minutes later I recognized the dirty, dusty, frosted a little tot, his chubby hands full of the candy balls I had seen a few minutes before lying in the dirty tray.

On Chambers street is a candy store with a soda water fountain. Knots of children, a penny in one hand, a small bottle in the other, entered the store.

One little girl wheeled a baby buggy in the window. She left it at the fountain and came out with a bottle I saw filled through a tunnel at the fountain.

Sick With Nausea.

She came out and gave the baby a drink of the horrible stuff. Then she finished the remaining soda. In a minute she became deathly sick with nausea.

What is the Boston Board of Health doing to allow such conditions to exist? The lives of the children on Barton street are as precious as those of the children of the Back Bay.

Sick With Nausea.

She came out and gave the baby a drink of the horrible stuff. Then she finished the remaining soda. In a minute she became deathly sick with nausea.

What is the Boston Board of Health doing to allow such conditions to exist? The lives of the children on Barton street are as precious as those of the children of the Back Bay.

WHITE'S STAR DAY

Five Thousand Shots in New Mine Riot

Cabin and Paint Creek Strikers Open Fire on Camp from Ambush.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 8.—Rioting such as has made life and property in the Cabin and Paint Creek coal fields unsafe for more than a year broke out anew when 150 strikers, hidden on a thickly-wooded hillside opened fire with rifles upon the mining camp of the Cabin Creek Consolidated Coal Company at Oxley, on Cabin Creek.

It is estimated that nearly 5,000 shots were fired from the hillside. Many of the bullets were directed at the power plant, and it if especially damaged. This morning the rioters turned loose a heavy mine motor at the mouth of the mine and started it down the long steep incline toward the tipple below.

Before reaching the tipple the motor was derailed by the carcass of a mule which had been previously shot down on the runway.

The Oxley mine camp is at the mercy of the rioters as the company has but half a dozen watchmen in reach. Sheriff Dill is expected to send a posse to their relief soon.

FORBES WRITES OF TRAINMEN'S STRIKE THREAT

By B. C. FORBES.
Business Editor of the American.

Another section of the railroad workers have voted to strike, demoralizing traffic over the eastern half of the country, unless demands for wage increases are granted. First the engineers, then and firemen, and now the trainmen have taken this course of action.

Where are strike threats to end?

Arbitrators found the engineers and the firemen entitled to better pay. The railroads were willing to grant concessions in these cases, but they decline the trainmen have no grounds for insisting upon another advance, seeing that their wages were raised in 1909. Yet, there is a feeling in railroad circles that arbitrators will seek the usual line of least resistance and effect a compromise.

Railroad managers are asking if employes know that every time they threaten to starve the people they will be granted higher wages, why they should not go on making fresh demands. They cannot lose anything by repeating the performance of putting a pistol to the heads of the railroads and the public, and they have learned by experience that they are tolerably certain to gain something when arbitration is agreed upon.

Experience may have justified the pessimistic attitude the railroads are taking toward arbitration. But will arbitrators allow mere contentions regardless of the merits or demerits of the men's demands?

Federal and State arbitration boards, as recommended by the Commission that submitted the railway engineers' dispute, have much to commend them in the case of public and quasi-public service workers upon the uninterrupted continuance of whose labors the people at large are dependent for the necessaries of life.

Therefore, the question to ask is not, "Should the railroads raise wages?" but, "Should we pay railway workers higher wages?"

Our impulse is to side always with the worker and against the employer. But in the case of the railroads you and I are in reality the employers. When we side with the men we side against ourselves. Mind you, it may be only common justice that we should so side.

The trainmen now threatening to strike may be entitled to higher wages. But may be our duty to put our hands in our pockets a little deeper in their behalf.

But let us decide with our eyes open. Let us realize what we are doing when we favor higher wages. Let us not let us delude ourselves that somebody else is to pay the extra money.

Once we have a public thoroughly enlightened as to what wage advances mean and on whom the burden falls, then threats that are not warranted will fail. On the other hand, employers that are underpaid will be able to gain a fairer hearing, even if they have no deadly weapon to level against their employers.

TODAYS STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stock markets continued dull this morning and prices were inclined to droop. The changes were not great, however, and the way stocks are acting under present conditions induces the belief in some quarters that liquidation has been some complete than had been realized. Bears are displaying a little more courage. The public is entirely indifferent to the market. Actual holders of stocks are not showing much disposition to sell.

At the opening the local market was heavy and dull and business was chiefly of the odd lot kind. There was no sale of Boston Elevated reported for the first hour, Boston & Maine was unchanged, New Haven off ⅝ and United Fruit ¼. Calumet & Arizona and Alaska Gold were among mining issues to decline a little, while Utah Copper was ¼ higher at 27¼.

Around the beginning of the second hour in New York Westinghouse and Northern Ore were up a point and Erie preferred was down one. Most active stocks showed fractional losses, including Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific & Reading, Lehigh Valley, Chesapeake & Ohio, Amalgamated, American Smelting, Pennsylvania and Northern Pacific. Southern Pacific and American Can were a shade higher.

New York Tone is Firm.

Despite the fears about the banking situation in Pittsburgh, and some selling of American stocks in Europe, the New York market had a firmer tone at the start than many observers had expected. There were declines in some international issues and the list ranged a little lower, but selling pressure was not strong and the market acted very well in early trading when all circumstances are considered.

Sentiment, however, was rather gloomy and this was shown by the irregularity. Reading was the most active issue, opening at 156⅜, for a gain of ⅜ and then selling down to 156⅛ for a net loss of ⅜. Other declines included Steel common ⅛, Union Pacific ½, Amalgamated ⅜, American Smelting ⅛, C. & O. ¼, B. & O. ⅝, Pennsylvania ⅜ and Canadian Pacific ½. Steel recovered its loss and Pacific gained ⅛ on support by American Telegraph & Telephone, Southern Pacific and St. Paul.

The Curb was quiet.

Americans in London hardened. Canadian Pacific was weak and lower over there. Business was quiet in that market and the Balkan situation was considered no worse.

Trying to Stop Railroad Strike.

President Wilson is trying to stop the strike of 100,000 or more trainmen and conductors on Eastern railroads who ask for pay raises which will aggregate $17,000,000 a year. The heads will not consent to arbitration under the Erdman act because they say the railroads have not there which it empowers to settle disputes is really a "one man board." It has three members, one representing employes and one the roads and while the third is named by the other two President Wilson and Secretary of Labor Wilson are expected to urge Congress to amend the act so that it will be set-on instead of three arbitrators.

The question of strike may be settled at the conference in New York today of managers of forty-four roads with representatives of the conductors and trainmen. It is said that ninety per cent. of the men have voted in favor of quitting work, according to Timothy Shea chairman of the road representatives, passenger conductors were paid $1,500 and the average in 1912, passenger trainmen got a little less than $1,000 each, freight conductors $1,300, freight trainmen about $875, yard conductors $1,200, and yard trainmen $1,000 each.

If the men strike they will tie up 50,000 miles of trackage and about 600,000 other railroad employes will be idle.

It is a very serious situation and it is feared that a strike which will tie up all traffic east of the Mississippi and north of the Potomac is certain, unless railroad or separation. The court awarded $10 a week alimony.

Need Another Tariff Vote.

Democratic Senators held a caucus in Washington last night on the new tariff bill, and out of a total of forty-nine, forty-seven were present. Forty-eight votes are needed for the enactment of the measure. Senator Culberson of Texas, who is ill, was absent as was Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, who has bolted. Four of the Democratic Senators would not accept the measure as it stands. They are Ransdell and Thornton of Louisiana, Shafroth of Colorado and Newlands of Nevada.

The Louisiana men and the Colorado Senator refused to vote on a resolution for the support of the bill, which was offered instead of a measure by the Newlands voted against it. The resolution read:

"That the tariff bill agreed to by this conference in its amended form is declared to be a party measure, and it is the undivided support as a duty by Democratic Senators, without amendments, provided, however, that the conferees on the Finance Committee may, after a conference or otherwise, propose amendments to the bill."

It is believed that there will be enough votes to pass the measure when the final test comes. The rebellion is over free sugar.

London Copper Quotations.

Very little movement in the metal is looked for until after the Queens' Association reports tomorrow the figures for June consumption. It is believed by most people that a decrease in surplus stocks will be reported. Estimates as to the extent of the decrease vary from 3,000,000 to 12,000,000 pounds. Buying has been at a standstill for several days. Consumers and speculators alike want to be least the June figures. Production at the mines is being curtailed. There is no intention on the part of producers to glut the market. They want to keep the price around 15 cents a pound for electrolytic when consumers are forced to resume buying.

Financial News in Brief.

The House Banking and Currency Committee are scheduled to begin consideration of the Wilson-Glass-Owen currency bill, section by section, but no promise is held out by the committee when the bill is to be reported to the House.

Merchants and Miners Transportation directors took no action today on their 8% more meeting last week on the dividend usually declared at about this time, and no reason has been given for passing it.

The world's visible supply of cotton is estimated to be 3,229,426 bales, against 3,478,011 last week, 3,187,329 last year, and 2,242,299 year before last. Of this the total of American cotton is 1,865,426 bales, against 2,060,011 last week and 2,190,329 last year.

For the fiscal year ending with June, Louisville & Nashville's gross earnings increased more than $750,000. Gross receipts from operation from July 1, 1912, to June 30, 1913, were $59,467,771, as compared with $58,211,788 for the preceding period.

New business for the United States Steel Corporation is now at the rate of about 25,000 tons a day, which compares with from 25,000 to 30,000 during the corresponding week in 1912.

The New York sub-treasury gained net $5,350,000 from the banks yesterday and has gained $11,052,000 since Friday.

White sheep give more wool than black sheep—there are more of them

REMINGTON stenographers do more of the world's work than other stenographers—there are more of them.

Nature only knows why there are more white sheep than black.

All the world knows why there are more Remington operators than others.

REMINGTON is the machine in which the most operators have confidence—and the machine which gives them the confidence to make good.

REMINGTON is the machine in which the majority of good business schools have confidence—the confidence to turn out competent, efficient operators—the thing on which the very life of those schools depends.

REMINGTON is the machine in which business men and business houses have confidence—because the big majority of good stenographers are Remington trained and "go to work the first day without breaking in."

12,500,000 Remington letters mailed in the United States every business day in the year

Isn't that the answer to the question, "which machine?" for your office?

Throughout the world Remington is a synonym for typewriter efficiency. It is the voice of the business world.

NORTH ADAMS, July 8.—Miss Nellie Jacula, fifteen, was suffering today from shot wounds in the face, the third Bay State "I didn't-know-it-was-loaded" victim in twenty-four hours. Adam Boucik pulled the trigger of a gun pointed at a hunting picture, saying: "I kill the ducks!"

The girl's screams of pain followed the report. Ten shot entered her face. The day's other "unloaded" gun victims in the state were John Fitzgerald at Milton and Norman Le Fave, the Melrose baby, shot by his brother.

Would You Like $1,000 In Gold? Here's Your Chance to Try for It

This Is Picture No. 23

Get Into the Proverb Contest and Don't Let Your Friends Walk Away With a Prize You Might Win.

"Better late than never." Contestants in the Boston American's Puzzle Picture Contest will tell you that this is a proverb which fits to a wise to notice.

Especially those who have entered late and now find themselves enjoying the work of solving the puzzle pictures with the possibility of a large reward ahead of them.

These competitors have had to work a little harder, but then they have been compensated by the pleasure they have obtained in their results.

Besides, they have lifted a great load off their minds by settling into the race and not dropping off to one side and seeing their friends forging ahead and nearer the goal.

That goal is something worth considering. This is every day that you can hope to win $1,000 in gold for solving seventy-five puzzle pictures. And the chance to win a part of one of 155 cash awards ranging from the one hundred and fifty-five best sets of solutions of the seventy-five puzzle pictures.

Ordinarily in contests like this there is one big prize offered, and the balance of the prizes are insignificant articles. Look over the American's cash awards and see if there is one among the one hundred and fifty-five that you would not be proud to call your own.

Read over the list of prizes and then answer this question. Is it for you?

WHY ARE YOU NOT IN THIS CONTEST?

Is it because you have not to offer for not being in?

If you have any excuse other and turn away. There is no excuse, because the conditions are the same for everyone who can enter. It depends entirely on individuals.

You will find the puzzle pictures in The American each day. All you have to do is to solve these pictures day by day, number them and write your solutions with your name and address in the coupons. Or, if you prefer, you can write letters or pencil copies of the puzzle pictures and send these with your coupons after the end of the contest.

Then there is the guide. You are not groping in the dark. The guide contains the answers to every puzzle picture appearing in its pages. That answer is correctly quoted, and in using it you know that you are employing the officially correct words.

So, if you are not in the contest, the fault comes right home to yourself.

You'd better remedy this fault, and get RIGHT into THE CONTEST.

If you have any faith in your abilities, put them to work. Don't let them run to waste. Get some results from them. Here's your chance; why throw it away? It may never come again when you are in shape to tackle it.

You can secure the guide at the Contest Dept., for the modest sum of twenty-five cents, or five cents extra if sent by mail.

After back pictures, send to the Contest Editor, 1 Winthrop square, and they will be sent to you at the regular rates of the American, that is, one cent for each daily picture and two cents for each Sunday picture.

Twenty-three puzzle pictures have been printed. It's up to you to show you are not afraid even of that number. Get into the race. There is time for you to win if you ACT NOW.

What Proverb Does This Picture Represent?

Proverb Contest Editor, No. 23
Boston American, No. 5 Winthrop Square:
My Solution of Problem Puzzle No. 23 is:

Hold all answers until you have the entire set, and then send them in. They must all be before the publication of the last picture.

The Official Guide

All You Possess Is Hope

Keep It Alive; Do Not Let Indolence Overcome You. Hope and Work

Copyright, 1913, by the Star Company.

Man is a mental machine. The devils that live in man's mind interfere with the machine.

You have got inside of your head, that white ivory temple, a brain inherited from thousands of different animals that lived on this earth ahead of you.

That wonderfully formed skull from which you look out at the world is simply an expansion and development of the topmost joint in your backbone.

In that developed, physical thinking machine lives the soul which is YOU. And it is constantly at war with the attractions, the temptations, the vices, all the troubles that it has inherited from animal ancestry and savage ancestry through millions of years.

Your fight against evil has got to be a fight carried on inside of your own mind.

The wall that you build around your thinking machinery, around your will, must be a mental wall, built up of regular thought, of good thought, suppression of evil, and the exercise of qualities that give results, perseverance, consistency, justice.

Sometimes the building of a wall such as we need is as tedious as was the building of the great Chinese Wall.

The Chinese built that huge wall around their kingdom to keep out the Tartars and other hordes, just as they build the little walls in front of their doors to keep out evil spirits.

Both walls were foolish and useless. For the Tartars came in and ruled in China for centuries, just as the evil spirits dodge around the little brick walls and go into the Chinese house.

Your mental building may be as tiresome and slow as the Chinese Wall. But, at least, when the wall is built in your mind it will do the work for which it was built.

This is the season of hope. It is the good time for the man who has been discouraged, whose years of failure, repeated efforts ending in lack of success, have discouraged him. It is the time for him to realize that hope is never lost while man lives, and that as long as a man hopes and tries he CAN build his wall, he can keep out failure and keep down the weaknesses inherited, that grow up in the brain and destroy useful thought, as weeds destroy the useful growth in a garden.

The one thing to keep alive in the mind is HOPE.

Carlyle's wonderful old character, Teuffeldroch, says:

"Man is, properly speaking, based upon Hope; he has no other possession but Hope; this world of his is emphatically the Place of Hope."

This world is a world of hope. And this is hope's blossoming season. Hope and courage are practically the same. We should keep in mind Goethe's lines: "Courage gone, everything gone, better thou wert never born."

If at the end of a week you find courage failing and hope dim, go out into the country and look at the weaker animals, that share this earth with you.

Watch some patient bird build for the third, fourth and tenth time the nest that has been cruelly destroyed.

Watch the spider work over and over at the web—patient, never discouraged.

See the feeble blades of grass struggling against heat and drouth, and the pressure of weeds and other enemies.

All of Nature is hope, a courageous struggle, perseverance.

Man is the weakest animal, the feeblest, the least persistent.

For awhile he considers himself the ruler of the globe, full of pride and confidence—he is, in reality, in a transitional, changing stage, halfway between the animal of the past and the real man who is to be on this earth in the future.

Our brains have only just been acquired. Man has been able to think in the feeblest of ways for a thousand centuries at most—and the animals have been here for ten millions of years, and more.

Man has had language for only a few centuries. As a race he has been a reading animal ONLY DURING THE PAST GENERATION.

Our minds easily become tired; all our other organs work splendidly. The lunatic walks, sees, feels and hears. It is the weak mind that goes first.

As you struggle to keep alive hope and courage, and try to build up inside of your brain, as our ingenious artist suggests, such a wall of self-protection as the Chinaman builds outside of his house, remember that WORK alone is worth while.

The very worst that can happen to you IS THE ENDING OF THIS LIFE.

That is not such a serious thing. And while the life lasts you might as well keep working at it, planning, fighting yourself and building.

The worst of the evil spirits that attack us is laziness. Nine-tenths of all the failures could have been successes if they had not been indolent, easily tired by mental work, the only kind that counts.

Laziness, indolence, weakness in mental effort—they are the big trouble.

Idleness makes room for all the other troubles; vices grow where good thoughts are not growing, just as weeds grow when the hoe is idle.

Above all, keep hope and courage alive. They are to man what steam is to the engine, and electric force to the dynamo.

The Cruise of the "Piffle!"

TELL THE SHIP'S SURGEON TO BANDAGE IT.
FATHER, DEAR FATHER, COME HOME WITH ME NOW,— DON'T STAY HERE AND GET IN A SCRAP!— BE GENTLE AND MEEK WHEN YOU'RE SLAPPED ON THE CHEEK, AND DON'T GROUCH OR DISGRUNTLE THE JAP!
THE MAIN MAST IS BROKEN!
THE YELLOW PERIL
F. Opper

"My goodness sakes alive!" As Admiral Professor Juice, of the dreadnaught "Piffle," uttered these forcible words he rapped on the table and called the meeting of the Board of Naval Control to order! The Board consisted of Senator Bonehead, sometimes called "Dry Land Lew," because he was afraid of the water; Congressman Chucksteak, who had once made a voyage of six miles on a canal boat, and Judge Umps, author of a plan for filling up the Atlantic Ocean with gravel and annexing the territory thus formed to the United States! The remaining member, Senator Chickenfeed, was absent, having lately been caught receiving a letter which ran as follows: "My Dear Senator—I enclose check of $25,000. Your work for Standard Oil is simply grand! I'm awfully glad I hired you! Yours, Archbold." The subject before the meeting was, "How can the American Navy be kept as small as possible?" After some discussion a plan was adopted for turning all United States battleships into chicken yards, enclosing the decks with wire netting and stocking them with poultry, thus securing a handsome revenue for the Government! Suddenly the second mate burst into the room and shouted, "There's a hole in the bottom of the ship! She's sinking!" With perfect self-control Admiral Juice replied, "Fill up the hole with some old newspapers and pipe all hands to attend the mandolin concert this evening!" Scarcely had these words left his lips, when a horrible crash—

To be continued—in all probability.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

FARMERS' MARKETING TROUBLES

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Farmers don't pick up a paper these days without seeing something on marketing plans to aid the farmer to get his produce to the consumer without the great difference in price as between grower and consumer. Commissions of all sorts are studying this problem. Individuals, corporations, lawmakers and societies have the one and only scheme.

It is all mighty fine, much of it all is very edifying. With so much discussion and planning and scheming and uplifting beneficial results must result. So much agitation cannot take place without getting people to thinking, and after a while, with thinking right along right lines, real results may come.

But the farmer isn't going to get any adequate practical, worth while marketing plan until he works it out himself. Moreover, he won't accept anybody else's plan, and I know it.

If he does accept my semi-benevolent scheme in that direction, he won't stand by it. It must come from his own efforts, his own organization, through plans formulated within his own ranks—and, I believe, through the Farmers' Union.

Do not understand that I minimize or would stop others in honest and genuine endeavor to solve farmers' problems and get down to a tangible, workable, common sense plan for marketing. There are many unselfish and noble spirits at work, and, as I have stated, by the nation-wide agitation over marketing good is bound to come.

But the farmers are arbiters and masters of their own destiny.

C. S. BARRETT,
President, Farmers' Union.

Motherhood—Expectant Mothers Should Eat, Drink and Exercise in Moderation and Wisdom; Women Should Lead Outdoor Life.

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner

GIRLS of seventeen are not, as a rule, given to serious thought.

Even marriage at sixteen seldom awakens the real woman in a year.

But there are rare exceptions.

Such an exception has been found in a young wife of seventeen, who is suddenly aware that she is to become a mother in four months' time.

Now she is filled with awe, and with anxiety! She says: "I have always had an ideal of exerting a good influence over an unborn child; and now I am distressed to think that all these months have passed without any conscious effort on my part. I have played ball, swum and indulged in other athletics according to my regular custom. And in leisure moments I have read Milton and Shakespears and Burns.

"I am splendidly well, but I am most anxious lest I have done things I ought not to do, and left undone other things at this critical time.

Moderation in All Things the Best Course Before Motherhood

"What can I do for the next few months to benefit my unborn child?"

The very best thing this young mother expectant can do is to exercise with moderation, rest when she feels like it, eat and drink with moderation, and wisdom, and be happy and trust God.

Motherhood is the most natural thing in the world for women who are normal and in good health.

It often produces a normal, healthful condition for those who are not well.

Nature never intended any woman to utterly change her mode of life when expecting a child, if her mode of life had been a reasonable and sensible one previously.

Outdoor life and athletics are both reasonable and sensible, and more harm would have resulted to both mother and child by giving them up suddenly, and taking too great concern about a perfectly natural condition, than by continuing to indulge in these pastimes as long as this young woman did.

No doubt the coming child will be strong in body, with excellent lung power.

And its coming into this plane of existence will not be attended with any abnormal difficulties.

We must remember that the Indian woman rides her horse, and performs all sorts of laborious tasks up to the very hour of her delivery.

Outdoor Life and Exercise Greatest Aid Toward Maturity

The wife of an army officer told the writer of frequently seeing such woman drop out of line for a few hours and return to the tribe later with the new-born child wrapped in a blanket.

All women who live an outdoor life, and who exercise in the open air, have less complications in maternity than those reared under hothouse conditions.

This young mother of seventeen, who takes such a serious view of her responsibility, is certain to bring a strong, beautiful child into the world, and equally sure of guiding it into a splendid maturity.

She need only fill her mind with love thoughts, and with faith in God, and trust in the Unseen Powers which govern this earth, to have all go well with her.

In God's great universe, there are Guardian Angels provided for every mortal, and in such degree as we love and reverence these angels, and as we live worthy of them, do they guide and help us in our difficult hours.

Angels Guard Difficult Hours of Expectant Mothers

If we refuse to believe in them, or continually think and talk and act in a way to pain them, we alienate them and deprive them of their power to help us.

About the expectant mother are bands of Shining Ones, and if she will rest happy in the thought of their protection, and regard them as messengers and emissaries from God Himself, great strength and peace and happiness will come to her.

And great blessings upon her child.

For of such are the kingdom of heaven.

PERFUMED POWDER

By WEX JONES

The newest skirt for woman—it's a risky thing to knock it,
For it's cutely fitted up with a cunning pistol pocket.

Oh, should you argue wih the fair,
Powder smoke will fill the air;
Bullets whizzy
Will make you dizzy;
You had better bow and scoot
Before the girl begins to shoot,
Because—this here is cowboy lore—
Words are nix with a forty-four.

Still, speaking of this latest fad, this cunning pistol pocket,
Here, I think, are several things extremely prone to block it:

A handkerchief
And a powder puff;
Some trading stamps
And a manicure buff;
Smelling salts
And a pocket glass;
Jumbled up
With a theatre pass.
A recipe
For custard pie;
A headache cure
And a book and eye——

The list's a good bit longer, but here I'll have to dock it
For I've used up all the space allowed the lady's pi[illegible]
